A Note from the President...

Dear Kentucky Extension Homemakers,

As I visited 11 area annual meetings this past year, I saw many differences and many similarities. However, it was easy to see the planning and execution, the delegation of duties, and the cooperation of the members in lessons, activities, and projects. Some area meetings were large and some small. All were beautifully decorated, many with wonderful themes. Some were in venues and others were smaller, quaint, cozy, and in comfortable settings. Some had speakers and entertainment, and others were more about recognition and accomplishments. All of them were great! I was encouraged and thankful to be included in all of them.

All of you 11,310 homemaker members are unique and different, and all of you are special. I appreciate you more than I could ever tell you in words. I want to give a special thank you to Kelly May, our state advisor, for her guidance and support this year. She has kept me on track and been wonderful to work with. A big thank you to our state officers: 1st Vice President Ann Porter, 2nd Vice President Julie Hook, Treasurer Patsy Kinman, Secretary Wanda Atha, and Parliamentarian Susan Hansford. These ladies have big jobs and keep us prepared, informed, and legal. I also want to thank the state chairs for the wonderful programs and contests they have planned for all of you. Our area presidents have been wonderful to work with and have gotten in reports and passed down needed information to counties and clubs. Whenever I asked one of them to do a task, they always graciously completed it. We are so lucky in Kentucky to have the structure and cooperation among its leaders. Many other states do not have this. We also are very lucky to have the guidance and support system of the University of Kentucky to help us plan and have as resources in our homemaker organizations.

It is my profound belief that we live in a society that is ever changing, and if we do not change with it, we will be left behind. This is just one reason we need KEHA. My grandmother and my mother were brought up with strong family values. They also believed in helping those that needed help, whether it was family, neighbors, or community members. I am sure that most of you grew up with this same principle. When I read over the Area President reports, I was amazed and so very proud of you as Kentucky Extension Homemakers. The many community service projects you've reported and the number of people you've helped has been tremendous. Food baskets, clothing drives, children's supplies and backpacks, supplies for homeless or displaced people, toys and clothing for children in need, visits to elderly people, and home-cooked meals for those who were ill or grieving are just a few of the very personal ways in which you have made a great difference. The many classes such as: budgets, finance, and safe banking; scams; food preparation and preservation; environment changes and bee pollination; gardening; recycling; sewing and fabric skills; mental, physical, and personal health; personal and home safety; crafts; photography; painting and drawing; and many more have all made a tremendous impact on your communities and each one of us as individuals. This is what keeps us strong! We are homemakers, teachers, helpers, and friends. We are needed! Help us grow and not be left behind.

Brenda Hammons, KEHA President

2024 KEHA State Meeting
May 7-9, 2024
Bowling Green, KY

'Blazing The Way With KEHA' is the theme of our 2024 KEHA State Meeting in Bowling Green! The Fort Harrod Area is hosting this year's State Meeting and they have been working hard to help local, county, and area homemakers rev up their engines and blaze the way for a memorable meeting. The three-day agenda is full of wonderful learning sessions and hands-on craft classes that include a wide number of winning topics and activities. There is a way for everyone to spark their engines to victory!

KEHA will start the race this year with Tuesday's opening luncheon. This change was well received last year, and it will give participants more evening free time while in Bowling Green. Our keynote speaker will be a representative from the Corvette Museum. Let us show our enthusiasm to join the race by wearing our racing colors! For the opening luncheon, wear the colors of the checkered flag – black and white. Right from the start, we want to showcase our victories! In racing, the checkered flag signifies the end of the race, and we will highlight how we've crossed the finish line on ovarian cancer fundraising, as well as later on volunteer hours, community service, membership, and programs.

The KEHA Choir will again be the highlight of the General Session on Wednesday night. Everyone always enjoys the KEHA Choir performing their entertaining musical talents; you don't want to miss the show.

The Quilt Square showcase and auction will be featured again this year! Everyone will want to be working on their 12-inch quilt squares, as the Quilt Square Auction is sure to be a fan favorite. Please don't forget the KEHA Showcase. Each area can have up to two displays. Please send your form by March 15.

As you get on the road to this event, remember hotels tend to be cold, so please bring a sweater or jacket for your comfort. And note that our host area has planned a new and different registration gift this year, so you may want to bring your own tote bag. You won't want to miss out! Get blazing and send in your registration now!

Ann Porter, 1st Vice President

UK Corner

The University of Kentucky Family and Consumer Sciences Extension program continues to work to build strong families across the Commonwealth. The support KEHA provides at the local and state level is instrumental in allowing us to work toward this goal. At the state level, we have been actively working to offer training opportunities for both new and tenured agents to ensure our programmatic offerings continue to meet local community needs. I hope you have noticed the range of programming offered in your county newsletters. We are currently gearing up for our February FCS Agent Training Week and are excited about the new programming agents will be to offer at the county level.

FCS Extension continues to be very successful in securing extramural funding. Total grant awards exceeded $13 million. Extramural funds allow the opportunity to serve specific needs within our communities; programmatic efforts include substance use prevention and recovery, mental health first aid, military families, and nutrition education.

Highlights from extramural projects include over 1,800 individuals trained in Mental Health First Aid, 1,000 community professionals trained in Addiction 101, nearly 1,200 nurses participating in a continuing education course focused on rural mental health challenges and unique farm stressors that impact the well-being of farmers, farmworkers, and their families; and 590,212 SNAP and EFNEP participants were reached.

The Family and Consumers Sciences Extension program has focused heavily on expanding campus-based partners, allowing more program offerings at the county level. Examples of campus-based partners directly contributing to Extension programming include the College of Pharmacy, the College of Dentistry, the Markey Cancer Center, and the College of Nursing.

We are pleased that we can continue to fill positions at the county level; if you know someone interested in joining our fantastic team of Family and Consumer Sciences professionals, please encourage them to check out the Martin-Gatton College of Agriculture, Food and Environment Job website at <https://jobs.ca.uky.edu/>.

On behalf of our state staff and faculty, I would like to express our sincere appreciation for the support the KEHA organization and its individual members provide the Family and Consumer Sciences Extension program.

With sincerest thanks and best wishes,

Jennifer Hunter, Ph.D., Assistant Director, Family and Consumer Sciences Extension
